Nicole Cramer is a member of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey bars. She concentrates her practice in general liability, product liability, and premises liability. Prior to joining Sweeney & Sheehan, Nicole gained substantial litigation experience representing clients in Texas for over six years. With a strong belief in utilizing alternative dispute resolution where possible, Nicole was a Texas certified mediator in civil litigation matters and family law matters.

Nicole earned her Juris Doctor, with a Certificate in Trial Advocacy, from Temple University Beasley School of Law where she graduated cum laude. While in law school, she clerked with SEPTA, and participated in Moot Court and Trial Team in both regional and national competitions receiving awards for her legal research and writing, civil trial advocacy, and appellate advocacy skills. Immediately prior to law school, Nicole received a Bachelor of Science in Finance and Legal Studies from Indiana University of Pennsylvania where she was a member of the Business Honors program, founded the Mock Trial Club, and graduated summa cum laude.

Outside of Sweeney & Sheehan, Nicole enjoys crocheting, reading, board games, and going to quizzo.
